

Education is virtually free in Turkey compared to many European countries.

The foreign students seeking a full degree and the exchange students spending one or two semesters at Trabzon University are expected not to have any financial problems since they are paid a monthly stipend or bursary by their national agencies or home institutions. However, if, by any means, they run into difficulty, the university will try to help them out.